

ABOUT US

SUSTAINABLE SOLUTIONS

EARTH DAY

JOIN THE GARDEN

welcome to your online community garden

Join today for a chance to be featured on the Green Thumbs Earth Day Celebration Page!

JOIN THE GARDEN

sustainable solutions

We know you have a green thumb, but there is always room to grow! Get even more green by checking out these sustainable gardening tips.

plant organic.

Plant organic plants and seeds, use safe pest control, rotate crops yearly, or draw in some pollinators. Check out this list for more.

ORGANIC THREAD

save water.

There are lots of options... drip irrigation systems, watering your pots in the afternoon, recycling rainwater, xeriscaping, mulching, and more.

H2O SAVERS THREAD

plant perennials.

They grow bigger and better each year, giving you an opportunity to divide the plant, share it, or plant elsewhere in your ever-growing garden.

PERRENIALS THREAD

care by composting.

Compost will add nutrient rich humus to your soil while also reusing what you already have. Learn proper composting techniques.

native plant guide.

Native plants thrive in their suitable climates, meaning less work, less water, and a

join today for earth day

We're your online community garden and this Earth Day we are highlighting what members of the community have been up to. Submit your Earth Day actions for a chance to be featured.

JOIN THE GARDEN

First Name

Last Name

Email

Phone

your Earth Day action:

SUBMIT

earth day exhibition

Check out what the Green Thumbs gardeners have been up to for this Earth Day. Don't forget to submit your actions for a chance to be featured. Interested in learning more? Click on a gardener's name to chat more.

"I realized strawberries and willowherb are native to my home state, Vermont. Just planted some in my front yard and will definitely be planting more native Vermont plants soon." - Charles Clover

CHAT WITH CHARLES

"This Earth Day, I made the switch to a fully organic garden. New organic tomato plants, fresh compost, a vegetable garden rotation, and put some pollinator attracting flowers nearby." - Ellie Elm

"Perennials are so genius. I only have to buy seeds once and they come back every year. This Earth Day I have officially planted Penny

"I'm using old pasta sauce jars as plant pots and juice containers as watering cans! I love gardening as much as I love food so its working

about green thumbs

Green Thumbs is a community based site that provides seasonal tips and tricks for the expert gardeners. This Earth Day, we've compiled the best tips for a more green and sustainable garden. Join the garden today and check in next season for a new community initiative.

JOIN TODAY

SUSTAINABLE SOLUTIONS

